PROJECT FOUNDATION

This document is the third internship module for LeadPulse, a conceptual SaaS-based lead management and marketing analytics tool for small businesses. It builds directly on the Customer Persona & Funnel Strategy (Module 1) and the 30-Day Organic Content Strategy (Module 2), extending the same personas — Sana Malik, Bilal Ahmed, and Ayesha Raza — and the same TOFU/MOFU/BOFU funnel into a paid Google and LinkedIn advertising strategy plus a five-part automated email nurture sequence.

STRATEGIC ASSUMPTION NOTICE

LeadPulse is a conceptual product developed for internship and academic purposes. This document contains no real campaign results, no real customers, and no fabricated testimonials. Budget figures, timing intervals, and performance targets are hypothetical planning assumptions, clearly labeled throughout as Strategic Assumptions.

01

EXECUTIVE OVERVIEW*Connecting Paid Advertising and Email Nurturing*

LeadPulse is a simple SaaS-based lead management and marketing analytics tool built for small businesses. It centralizes leads from Facebook, Instagram, Google Ads, WhatsApp, and website forms into a single dashboard, allowing business owners and marketers to see exactly which channels generate leads, which leads convert into paying customers, and where opportunities are being lost.

This Paid Campaign & Email Drip module is the third internship deliverable. It builds on the audience awareness generated by the Module 2 organic content strategy and converts that interest into qualified leads through paid advertising, then nurtures those leads toward a free-trial or demo conversion through a structured email sequence.

The Purpose of Paid Advertising

Paid advertising accelerates lead generation beyond what organic content alone can achieve. Google Search Ads capture small business owners and marketers who are already actively searching for a lead-tracking solution, while LinkedIn Ads reach decision-makers — founders, owners, and marketing managers — who influence or approve software purchases for their business.

The Purpose of Email Nurturing

Not every lead is ready to start a trial the moment they click an ad. A structured, five-part email nurture sequence keeps LeadPulse visible, builds trust gradually, educates the prospect on the product, and guides them toward a low-pressure conversion action over a period of days rather than relying on a single ad click to close the deal.

Target Audience

This campaign speaks to the same three personas established in Module 1:

- Sana Malik — Small Business Owner (Priority 1): wants a simple dashboard that shows where her customers come from, without training.
- Bilal Ahmed — Digital Marketing Manager (Priority 2): wants to prove which channel actually converts and needs ready-made reports.
- Ayesha Raza — Startup Founder / Agency Owner (Priority 3): needs a scalable, presentable dashboard for clients or investors.

How Paid Campaigns and Email Marketing Work Together

Paid Google and LinkedIn advertising drives qualified traffic to a LeadPulse landing page and lead form. Once a prospect submits their information, they enter the five-part automated email nurture sequence, which moves them from initial awareness through product education and trust-building, toward a conversion action such as exploring LeadPulse further or starting a conceptual free trial.

CAMPAIGN OBJECTIVE

Generate awareness, qualified leads, product interest, and potential free-trial conversions for LeadPulse among small businesses.

02

CAMPAIGN STRATEGY OVERVIEW

The Complete Customer Journey

The paid campaign and email drip strategy follows a four-stage journey that carries a prospect from first exposure to LeadPulse through to a qualified conversion action. Each stage below feeds directly into the next.

Customer Journey Explained

A prospect first encounters LeadPulse through a Google Search Ad while actively researching a lead-tracking solution, or through a LinkedIn Ad while browsing as a business decision-maker. Clicking the ad brings them to a purpose-built landing page where they can submit their details through a lead form. Once captured, the lead automatically enters the five-part email nurture sequence, which educates them about the lead-tracking problem, introduces LeadPulse as the solution, builds trust through practical value, and closes with a clear, low-pressure conversion call-to-action such as exploring LeadPulse further or joining a conceptual early access list.

PAID CAMPAIGN STRATEGY

Overview of the Advertising Approach

Campaign Objective Generate qualified leads for LeadPulse among small businesses evaluating lead-tracking solutions.	Primary Audience Small business owners, marketing managers, founders, and small agency owners.	Marketing Channels Google Search Ads and LinkedIn Ads, supported by a dedicated landing page.
Funnel Stage Primarily MOFU and BOFU, building on TOFU awareness from Module 2 organic content.	Expected Customer Action Submit a lead form to request more information or explore a conceptual free trial.	Key Performance Indicators Click-through rate, cost per lead, and lead form completion rate across both platforms.

Paid Campaign Strategy Summary

Element	Strategy
Primary Goal	Lead Generation
Target Market	Small Businesses
Main Channels	Google Ads & LinkedIn Ads
Funnel Focus	MOFU and BOFU
Conversion Action	Demo / Free Trial Interest
Campaign Duration	30 Days

04

GOOGLE ADS STRATEGY*Capturing High-Intent Search Traffic4.1 Campaign Objective

Google Ads is used to capture small business owners and marketers who are already actively searching for a solution to their lead-tracking problem. Rather than creating demand, Google Search Ads meet an existing need at the moment of intent — when someone types a query related to lead management, marketing analytics, customer conversion tracking, or a small business CRM alternative.

This makes Google Ads the highest-intent channel in the paid mix, well suited to MOFU and BOFU prospects who already recognize the lead-tracking problem, often because of the awareness built during the Module 2 organic content campaign.

4.2 Google Ads Campaign Structure

The Google Ads campaign is organized into a single campaign with three tightly themed ad groups, each targeting a distinct search intent.

CAMPAIGN: LeadPulse Lead Generation

Search Network — Small Business Segment

Ad Group 1

Lead Management Software

Ad Group 2

Marketing Analytics Software

Ad Group 3

Small Business Lead Tracking

Ad Group	Search Intent	Keyword Theme	Target Customer	Landing Page Focus
Lead Management Software	Actively seeking a lead organization tool	Lead management software for small business	Sana Malik — Small Business Owner	General LeadPulse overview and benefits
Marketing Analytics Software	Seeking channel-performance visibility	Marketing analytics for small businesses	Bilal Ahmed — Marketing Manager	Channel ROI and reporting features
Small Business Lead Tracking	Researching alternatives to spreadsheets/CRMs	Small business lead tracking software	Sana Malik & Ayesha Raza	Simplicity, setup ease, and pricing

4.3 Keyword Strategy

Keyword themes are organized around the search intent of each ad group. These are realistic keyword themes for planning purposes; they are not based on verified search-volume or competition data.

Keyword Theme	Search Intent	Funnel Stage
Lead management software for small business	Commercial / Solution research	MOFU
Small business lead tracking software	Commercial / Solution research	MOFU
Marketing analytics for small businesses	Informational to Commercial	TOFU / MOFU
Customer lead tracking tool	Commercial	MOFU
Track Facebook leads for business	Problem-specific / Commercial	MOFU
Lead conversion tracking software	Commercial / High intent	MOFU / BOFU

4.4 Google Search Ad Targeting Strategy

- Search Intent Targeting: Bid on commercial-intent keyword themes reflecting active research into lead-tracking or marketing-analytics tools, rather than broad, purely informational queries.
- Geographic Targeting: Focus on urban and suburban markets with active small-business digital ad spend, consistent with the ICP defined in Module 1 (e.g., Pakistan and other English-language SMB markets).
- Device Considerations: Prioritize desktop and tablet placements for higher-intent research sessions, while maintaining mobile eligibility for owner-level searches performed on the go.
- Audience Relevance: Layer in-market and affinity audience signals related to small business software and digital marketing tools to refine reach within the keyword-targeted campaign.
- Negative Keyword Concept: Exclude irrelevant or low-intent terms such as free lead tracking templates, enterprise CRM software, or job-search-related queries, to protect budget from unqualified clicks.
- Landing Page Alignment: Route each ad group to a landing page section matching its intent, so message match remains consistent from ad to page and improves conversion likelihood.

4.5 Google Ads Copywriting

Strategic Assumption: The following ad copy variations are written for internship planning purposes and have not been tested for actual click-through or conversion performance.

Ad Variation 1: Problem-Solution

Element	Content
Headline 1	Stop Losing Customer Leads
Headline 2	Organize Leads With LeadPulse
Headline 3	Simple Lead Tracking Software
Description	Track leads from multiple channels, monitor conversions, and understand your marketing performance in one place.
Display URL	www.leadpulse.com/lead-tracking
Call-to-Action	Learn More

Ad Variation 2: Productivity / Efficiency

Element	Content
Headline 1	Save Hours On Lead Admin
Headline 2	One Dashboard, Every Lead
Headline 3	LeadPulse for Small Business
Description	Stop switching between apps and spreadsheets. See every lead from every channel in one simple dashboard.
Display URL	www.leadpulse.com/save-time
Call-to-Action	Get Started

Ad Variation 3: Marketing Visibility / Analytics

Element	Content
Headline 1	Which Channel Really Converts?
Headline 2	Track Leads By Channel
Headline 3	Marketing Analytics Made Simple
Description	See which marketing channel brings paying customers, not just clicks, with LeadPulse's simple dashboard.
Display URL	www.leadpulse.com/analytics
Call-to-Action	See How It Works

05

LINKEDIN ADS STRATEGY

Reaching B2B Decision-Makers

5.1 LinkedIn Campaign Objective

The recommended LinkedIn campaign objective is Lead Generation, using LinkedIn's native Lead Gen Forms, supported by a secondary Website Conversions objective directing traffic to the LeadPulse landing page.

LinkedIn is a valuable channel for LeadPulse because it reaches business owners, founders, and marketing managers in a professional context, where they are more receptive to B2B software messaging than on consumer-first platforms. LinkedIn's job-title and industry targeting also allows LeadPulse to reach the specific decision-makers identified in the Module 1 personas, rather than a broad consumer audience.

5.2 LinkedIn Target Audience

Targeting Category	Selection
Job Titles	Founder, CEO, Owner, Marketing Manager, Digital Marketing Manager
Company Size	Small Businesses / Startups (1–25 employees)
Industries	E-commerce, Marketing Services, Professional Services, Technology, Real Estate
Location	Selected target markets with active small-business digital ad spend
Experience Level	Decision-Makers and Managers

These audience selections are deliberately narrow rather than broad. LeadPulse is not relevant to every LinkedIn user — it is relevant specifically to the owners, founders, and marketing managers of small businesses who generate leads across multiple channels, matching the ICP and three personas defined in Module 1.

5.3 LinkedIn Campaign Structure

Lead Form / Website Action — Submission or Click-Through

Each stage narrows the audience from a broad professional segment down to a qualified, submitted lead. The ad creative introduces the problem or solution, the landing page (or native LinkedIn Lead Gen Form) reduces friction for the prospect, and the final action — a form submission or website click-through — feeds directly into the email nurture sequence.

5.4 LinkedIn Ad Formats

- Single Image Ad: Simple, low-production format well suited to direct problem-solution and feature-highlight messaging aimed at business owners scrolling their feed.
- Carousel Ad: Useful for step-by-step content, such as walking a prospect through the lead-tracking problem across several cards before introducing LeadPulse.
- Lead Generation Form Ad: Reduces friction by pre-filling LinkedIn profile data into a native form, ideal for capturing decision-makers who are unlikely to complete a longer off-platform form.

5.5 LinkedIn Ad Copywriting

Strategic Assumption: The following ad copy variations are written for internship planning purposes and have not been tested for actual engagement or conversion performance.

Ad 1: Lead Management Problem

Element	Content
Primary Text	Leads coming in through Facebook, Instagram, WhatsApp, and your website — but no clear view of which one actually brings paying customers? You're not alone. Most small businesses face this exact gap.
Headline	See Every Lead In One Place
Description	LeadPulse centralizes leads from every channel into a single, simple dashboard.
Call-to-Action	Learn More
Creative Concept	Split-screen graphic: scattered channel icons on one side, unified dashboard icon on the other

Ad 2: Marketing Performance Visibility

Element	Content
Primary Text	Which ad channel is actually converting into paying customers? Most marketing managers can answer this for clicks, not conversions. LeadPulse tracks the full lead-to-customer journey by channel.
Headline	Prove What's Actually Converting
Description	Turn scattered ad data into one clear, channel-level report with LeadPulse.
Call-to-Action	Request Information
Creative Concept	Dashboard-style illustration comparing conversion performance across channels

Ad 3: Small Business Growth / Efficiency

Element	Content
Primary Text	Growth shouldn't mean more admin work. LeadPulse is built for small teams that want a simple, centralized way to manage leads without the complexity of an enterprise CRM.
Headline	Grow Without The Admin Overload
Description	A simple, centralized lead dashboard designed specifically for small businesses.
Call-to-Action	Explore LeadPulse
Creative Concept	Carousel: problem card, dashboard preview card, simple CTA card

06

GOOGLE VS LINKEDIN COMPARISON*Choosing the Right Channel for Each Purpose*

Feature	Google Ads	LinkedIn Ads
Audience Intent	Active Search	Professional Targeting
Best For	Demand Capture	B2B Awareness & Lead Generation
Targeting Method	Keywords	Job Titles / Industries
Funnel Focus	MOFU / BOFU	TOFU / MOFU
Main Strength	High Intent	Precise Professional Audience

Google Ads and LinkedIn Ads serve deliberately different purposes in this campaign. Google Ads captures prospects who already know they have a lead-tracking problem and are actively searching for a solution — a demand-capture role best suited to MOFU and BOFU. LinkedIn Ads, by contrast, reaches decision-makers based on their professional profile rather than a search query, making it effective for building awareness and generating interest among founders and managers who may not yet be actively searching, covering TOFU and MOFU. Running both channels together allows LeadPulse to capture existing demand through Google while building new demand through LinkedIn.

LANDING PAGE STRATEGY*Connecting Paid Ads to LeadPulse*

A single, focused landing page receives traffic from both Google and LinkedIn ads. Its purpose is to reinforce the ad's message, clearly explain LeadPulse, and capture the visitor's information through a simple lead form. The wireframe-style structure below outlines the page's sections in order.

Landing Page Wireframe

1. Hero Section	Headline reinforcing the ad's message, sub-headline, and a primary lead-capture CTA above the fold.
2. Problem Statement	A short, relatable description of the scattered-leads problem, mirroring the pain points from Module 1.
3. LeadPulse Solution	A brief, plain-language introduction to LeadPulse as the centralized answer to the problem.
4. Key Benefits	Three to four benefit statements: centralized tracking, channel-level visibility, follow-up reminders, simple setup.
5. How It Works	A simple three-step visual: connect your channels, see leads in one dashboard, track conversions.
6. Features Overview	Conceptual feature highlights such as multi-channel lead capture, conversion tracking, and reporting.
7. Call-to-Action	A repeated, clear CTA such as Learn More or Request Information, matching the ad's promise.
8. Trust / Transparency Section	Clear product explanation, transparent feature descriptions, and educational resources in place of testimonials.

STRATEGIC NOTE

Since LeadPulse is conceptual and has no real customers, the Trust / Transparency section uses clear product explanations, transparent feature descriptions, and educational resources instead of testimonials or case studies.

EMAIL NURTURE STRATEGY*Guiding Leads Toward Conversion*

Email nurturing is the practice of sending a structured, automated series of emails to a captured lead over a period of days, gradually building awareness, trust, and product understanding until the prospect is ready for a conversion action. Rather than asking a cold lead to commit immediately after clicking an ad, email nurturing allows LeadPulse to stay visible and useful across multiple touchpoints.

For LeadPulse, email nurturing is especially useful because small business owners and marketing managers rarely adopt a new tool on the first visit. A five-part sequence allows the campaign to first welcome the lead, then build awareness of the lead-tracking problem, educate on how LeadPulse solves it, build trust through practical value, and finally present a clear, low-pressure conversion opportunity.

The internship specification requires exactly five automated emails, each mapped to a funnel stage and a specific marketing objective, detailed in Part 10 of this document.

EMAIL AUTOMATION WORKFLOW

Sequence Timing and Triggers

STRATEGIC ASSUMPTION

The two-to-three-day intervals between emails are planning assumptions for internship purposes, chosen to give each message room to be read and acted upon without overwhelming the lead. In an actual deployment, these intervals would be refined based on open-rate and engagement data.

10

FIVE-PART EMAIL NURTURE SEQUENCE*Complete Automated Drip Content*

The five emails below form the complete automated nurture sequence triggered when a lead submits the landing page form. Each email includes its sending day, purpose, subject line, preview text, full body copy, call-to-action, funnel stage, and marketing objective.

Email Number	Email 1
Sending Day	Day 0 (Immediately after form submission)
Purpose	Introduce LeadPulse and establish a relationship with the new lead.
Subject Line	Welcome to LeadPulse — Let's Fix the Lead-Tracking Problem
Preview Text	Thanks for your interest in LeadPulse. Here's what to expect next.
Funnel Stage	TOFU (transition into MOFU)
Marketing Objective	Establish initial relationship and set expectations for the sequence
Call-to-Action	Learn more about LeadPulse

EMAIL BODY

Hi there,

Thanks for taking a moment to learn more about LeadPulse — we're glad you're here.

If you're a small business owner or marketer, there's a good chance leads are coming in from more places than you can easily keep track of: Facebook, Instagram, WhatsApp, Google Ads, and your website. LeadPulse is built around one simple idea — bringing every one of those leads into a single, easy-to-read dashboard, so you always know where your customers are coming from.

Over the next few days, we'll share a few short emails covering the lead-tracking problem many small businesses face, how LeadPulse is designed to solve it, and how you can learn more when you're ready.

No pressure at all — just useful information, one email at a time.

EMAIL 2

Email Number	Email 2
Sending Day	Day 2
Purpose	Help the reader recognize their own lead-management problems.
Subject Line	Are You Losing Leads Without Realizing It?
Preview Text	Three quiet signs your business might be losing leads.
Funnel Stage	TOFU

Marketing Objective	Build problem awareness without aggressive selling
Call-to-Action	See what's causing the gap

EMAIL BODY

Hi again,

Quick question: if someone asked you right now which marketing channel brought in your last five paying customers, could you answer confidently?

For most small businesses, the honest answer is no — not because the data doesn't exist, but because it's scattered across Facebook Ads Manager, WhatsApp chats, a notebook, or a spreadsheet that's rarely updated. That gap creates real, everyday problems: leads that sit unanswered for a day or two, follow-ups that quietly slip through the cracks, and marketing budget spent without a clear sense of what's actually working.

None of this usually feels like a big issue in the moment. It's only when you add it up over a month that the cost becomes clear.

In the next email, we'll walk through how LeadPulse is designed to close this exact gap.

EMAIL 3

Email Number	Email 3

Marketing Objective	Educate the lead on the product and its core value
Call-to-Action	Explore how LeadPulse works

EMAIL BODY

Hi,

In our last email, we talked about how scattered leads quietly cost small businesses time, money, and missed customers. Here's how LeadPulse is designed to fix that.

LeadPulse centralizes lead tracking around four core ideas: it pulls leads from Facebook, Instagram, Google Ads, WhatsApp, and website forms into one dashboard, so nothing has to be entered manually; it monitors which leads move from first contact to paying customer; it shows conversion performance by channel, not just clicks; and it presents everything in a simple, non-technical dashboard that doesn't require training to use.

The goal isn't to add another complicated tool to your day — it's to remove the guesswork from a process you're already doing.

If you'd like to see how this fits your specific setup, the next email includes a closer look with some practical examples.

EMAIL 4

Email Number	Email 4
Sending Day	Day 6
Purpose	Build confidence and demonstrate practical value without testimonials.
Subject Line	A Practical Look at What Better Lead Visibility Changes

Marketing Objective	Build trust through educational, non-testimonial value content
Call-to-Action	Learn more about improving lead management

EMAIL BODY

Hi,

Since LeadPulse is still in development, we want to be upfront: we don't have customer case studies to share yet. What we can share is a practical, conceptual example of the kind of decision better lead visibility supports.

Example scenario: A small business owner runs ads on both Facebook and Google. Each platform reports clicks and leads, but neither shows which of those leads actually became paying customers. Without that connection, next month's ad budget decision is really just a guess. With a centralized view of lead-to-customer conversion by channel, that same decision becomes based on evidence rather than assumption.

This is the kind of clarity LeadPulse is designed to provide — not by replacing your judgment, but by giving it better information to work with.

In our final email, we'll share how you can take the next step with LeadPulse.

EMAIL 5

Call-to-Action	Explore LeadPulse / Join Early Access (Conceptual)

EMAIL BODY

Hi,

Over the past week, we've talked about the lead-tracking problem many small businesses face, how LeadPulse is designed to solve it, and why channel-level visibility matters for smarter marketing decisions.

If any of this has felt familiar, here's a simple next step: explore LeadPulse further or join our early access list to be among the first to know as the product develops. (LeadPulse is a conceptual product currently in development — there is no live product or trial available yet.)

There's no obligation and no pressure — just an easy way to stay informed if solving this problem is something you're genuinely considering.

Thanks for reading along this week. We hope it's been useful, regardless of what you decide next.

CAMPAIGN BUDGET ASSUMPTIONS*Strategic Budget Assumptions for Internship PlanningIMPORTANT NOTE

The figures below are Strategic Budget Assumptions for Internship Planning only. They do not represent actual advertising spend, real campaign results, or confirmed pricing. They illustrate how a hypothetical 30-day budget might be allocated across categories.

Illustrative 30-Day Budget Allocation

Budget Category	Illustrative Allocation	Purpose
Google Ads	40%	Search campaign spend across all three ad groups
LinkedIn Ads	35%	Lead generation and website conversion campaigns
Landing Page / Creative Preparation	15%	Landing page setup and ad creative design
Email Marketing Tools	10%	Automation platform for the 5-part nurture sequence

Since the internship follows a 100% free / open-source tools policy, this strategy can be designed and simulated without real advertising spend — using free-tier ad account setups, no-cost landing page builders, and free email automation plans — with the budget allocations above serving only as a conceptual planning framework for how a live campaign might later be structured.

CAMPAIGN KPIs*Proposed Measurement Metrics*

The KPIs below are proposed measurement categories for evaluating this paid campaign and email sequence. As LeadPulse is a conceptual product, these are planning metrics only and do not represent actual campaign results.

Google Ads KPIs

KPI	What It Measures
Impressions	Total number of times Google Search Ads are shown
Clicks	Number of users who click through to the landing page
Click-Through Rate (CTR)	Percentage of impressions that result in a click
Cost Per Click (CPC)	Average cost paid per ad click
Conversion Rate	Percentage of clicks that result in a lead form submission
Lead Generation	Total number of qualified leads captured

LinkedIn Ads KPIs

KPI	What It Measures
Impressions	Total number of times LinkedIn Ads are shown
Engagement Rate	Reactions, comments, and shares relative to impressions
Clicks	Number of users who click through to the landing page
Lead Form Completion	Number of LinkedIn Lead Gen Forms submitted
Cost Per Lead (CPL)	Average cost per qualified lead captured

Email Marketing KPIs

KPI	What It Measures
Open Rate	Percentage of recipients who open each email
Click-Through Rate	Percentage of recipients who click a link within the email
Conversion Rate	Percentage of recipients who complete the desired action
Unsubscribe Rate	Percentage of recipients who opt out of the sequence

STRATEGIC RECOMMENDATIONS

Final Guidance for the Combined Strategy

Why Google Ads and LinkedIn Ads Should Serve Different Purposes

Google Ads should be relied upon to capture existing, high-intent demand from prospects already searching for a lead-tracking solution, while LinkedIn Ads should be used to build awareness and generate interest among decision-makers who are not yet actively searching but fit the ICP closely. Treating both channels identically would waste LinkedIn's precise professional targeting and underuse Google's high purchase intent.

Why Email Nurturing Is Important After Lead Capture

A single ad click rarely produces an immediate conversion for a B2B software product like LeadPulse. The five-part email sequence keeps the lead engaged over multiple touchpoints, allowing trust and understanding to build gradually rather than requiring an instant decision.

How Paid Advertising and Email Marketing Work Together

Paid advertising is responsible for driving qualified traffic and initial lead capture; email marketing is responsible for converting that captured interest into a meaningful next step. Neither works as effectively without the other — traffic without nurturing produces low conversion, and nurturing without traffic has no leads to work with.

Why Audience Segmentation Improves Marketing Effectiveness

The three personas defined in Module 1 — Sana Malik, Bilal Ahmed, and Ayesha Raza — experience the same core problem differently. Segmenting ad targeting and messaging by platform and audience (owner-focused Google keywords, manager-focused LinkedIn job titles) ensures each message speaks directly to its intended reader rather than relying on generic, one-size-fits-all messaging.

How This Strategy Supports LeadPulse's Growth

This Paid Campaign & Email Drip module converts the awareness and trust built during the Module 2 organic content campaign into a structured, measurable lead-generation and nurturing system. Combined with the upcoming Module 4 CAC/LTV analytics model, this creates a complete, connected growth marketing foundation for LeadPulse across organic content, paid acquisition, and lifecycle email marketing.

END OF MODULE 3 DOCUMENT

This document is limited to the Paid Campaign & Email Drip strategy. No social media content calendar or CAC/LTV financial model is included here — these belong to Module 2 and Module 4 respectively.
